Coyote Stories, a program for all ages!

Storyteller and author Susan Strauss will appear in a free program sponsored by Shepherdstown Public Library on Saturday, September 13 at 2 pm at Reynold's Hall, Shepherd University Campus.

Coyote, the wily hero/fool makes his tracks across America in adventures told by Native Americans for thousands of years. Often boastful, forgetful, selfish and sly, Coyote ignites and delights the fool in each of us at any age. These tales generate a better understanding of Native humor, culture and the "sacred teaching fool."

Meet Susan in person at a book signing following the event. Visit www.strausstoryteller.com to learn more about this internationally acclaimed environmental educator.

Children's Programming: It's what we did on our summer vacation!

A special thank you to our Friends of the Shepherdstown Library for its generous funding of our summer programming. Thanks also to the thirteen businesses and organizations that provided prize coupons or gift certificates to each child who completed a reading log. We are also so grateful for all the wonderful volunteers who helped make this year's summer programming a fantastic success! And, finally, thanks to all the kids (and adults!) who came out to learn about dragonflies, poisonous creatures, fossils, photography, and printmaking; build your own rockets and robo-bugs; and make slimy strands of DNA!
