Congratulations to teen library patron Ashton Lear!

Ashton has been selected as one of 53 state and territory finalists for this year's Doodle 4 Google contest!

This year's theme: "What makes me...me.?"

Ashton's winning entry for Grades 10-12 from the State of West Virginia is "Telling Tall Tales."

From Ashton: "What makes me, "me" is my love of telling stories. This doodle shows me (on "o") telling my siblings (on "G") a story, brought to life around us. Because I love writing, reading, and drawing, I created this from paper, and "Google" is cut out of a story I wrote."

Ashton was recently featured in The Journal.

Voting for the five national finalists will be open through February 22, 2016.

Gretchen Fry, Library Director at Bolivar-Harpers Ferry Public Library, and Lee Ann Warner, Director of Library Development at Shepherdstown Public Library, were part of the Eastern Panhandle team of library representatives at this year's Library Day at the Legislature held in the Capitol Building Rotunda in Charleston on February 2. Gretchen and Lee Ann spent part of the day demonstrating the many current E-services provided by our public libraries, and spent another part of the day visiting with our local area senators and delegates to discuss WVLA's Legislative Goals for 2016.
